America Become

Anushka Anastasia Solomon | Feb 4, 09 4:31pm

'such as she was, such as she would become' – Robert Frost

As our President is sworn in, I am become A Permanent Resident. As I hear him take
The oath of office with an 'Abundance of Caution', I am assured of my cup and portion.
As I watch his wife choose to give life in Fashion to the American Dreams of a Cuban, I feel fully human. As I watch her
Wear well the color of lemongrass
I hear world over, the shattering of glass
As our President clasps the small of her back
I know the Lord Of the Dance is leading
The nation soon to become - mine. As Michelle
Is become our belle, the dark nights of the Past, are overcome. Stars are strewn from Here to There. I too, clad in robes made by A man born away, in Taipei, her shoes
That day, Jimmy Choo I have to say
Mr. Robert Frost how proud I am to Become....America
As our President and his family move into
The White House, as the American dream
Becomes destiny, I wait and I watch. Five Years will fly. Ten years of immigrant tears
Will dry. On the cheek of tomorrow I, too
Sing America! The Alphabet of poets join Me from Nikki Giovanni to Julia Alvarez and Charles Simic. America is become Our Dream clothed in scriptural strength and Dignity. As I watch with the world, the old order
Go past, I know as surely as the day I saw last,
The American Dream tried on in every dressing
Room in our Country and abroad, will not unjustly
Bar entry to anyone. We wait, We watch, we pray
Each to his own God, silently or out loud Oh,
America, the Beautiful, may thou be so
Bountiful always in the eyes of Our God.
